

A black and white photograph of a man wearing sunglasses and a dark jacket, playing a saxophone. The image is the background for the left side of the advertisement.

When musicians really want to swing,
they pick up
one of our axes.

Talk to any musician long enough and eventually he will reverently refer to his instrument as his axe - as in the tool that allows him, at any moment, to cut loose and cut up in front of audiences with soul-stirring jazz solos or swinging rock riffs. When you're ready to do the same, stop by Band Instrument Exchange. What you'll find is one of Houston's largest selections of new and used instruments for sale or rental at what most people would honestly call, cut-rate prices.

1821 W. Alabama

713-523-4289

Offering musical instruction, service and sales of note since 1989.